Cover Story - Dr. Drucker's Philosophy of Health

Author: Michael Roth, D.C.

The art and science of chiropractic holds to a basic philosophy of health; life flows from the top down and the inside out. In other words, the brain controls all functions of the body, then passes that control downward through the internal central and peripheral nervous system via spinal nerves, and finally restores or maintains health from the inside out. In much the same way, Dr. Richard Drucker espouses this philosophy of health. Rather than restoring nerve flow through spinal adjustments, his approach uses the "second brain", or digestive pathway, to supply necessary bodily nutrition that flows through the human body to enhance life.

Dr. Richard Drucker, a highly respected naturopath, pioneered what many consider the finest, most comprehensive nutritional supplementation line in existence. Dr. Drucker is the founder and CEO of Drucker Labs, LP, which developed and currently utilizes a very unique and proprietary technique called intraCELL V Technology™, to deliver carbon-bonded nutrition to the body's cells at near 100% absorption.

Dr. Drucker's rethinking of the approach to nutritional supplements stemmed from his own health struggles with a hereditary autoimmune disease that started to manifest symptoms when he was a freshman in college. Over a relatively short period of time, he experienced various symptoms including pain, arthritis, weight loss, muscle wasting, and weakness, as well as environmental, chemical and food sensitivities.

As his health deteriorated over a period of years, Dr. Drucker looked for his own answers and began studying Linus Pauling's mineral deficiency theory that every ailment, sickness and disease can be traced back to an organic mineral deficiency. He reasoned that Pauling wanted to demonstrate the value for minerals that contain living carbon, not inorganic, toxic and synthetic colloid minerals. This revelation set Dr. Drucker on a path of intense study of organic carbon, alternative therapies, homeopathic remedies and nutritional medicine which eventually led to the initial mineral formulation which was and is the basis of the Drucker Labs' product line. Within a few hours of taking his unique, organic mineral formula, Dr. Drucker felt improvement which he had not experienced in years.

The results were attributed to organic living carbon that was the key to chelation, mineral delivery, and an elevated immune system. Continuing the treatment, led to further health improvements. Dr. Drucker continued to study, refine, and improve his original trace mineral formula to create his patented intraCell Technology. His process extracts higher levels of fulvic acid, oxygen, and carbon, the primary feature in his revolutionary nutritional products: intraMIN, intraMAX and intraKID.

intraCELL V Technology is the result of 20 years of research, testing, and analyses. It works to maximize intra-cellular and extra-cellular (interstitial fluid and fatty tissue) detoxification and to infuse nutrients rapidly into the cell. It takes 40 days to produce one batch of intraMAX, a 415+ nutrient and multivitamin supplement. During that time, the intraCELL V process wraps each molecule in organic carbon. Then, the molecules are broken down into new ultra-small, restructured particles. These new molecules now have ultra-low molecular weight and size. This technology enables the rapid conversion of inorganic matter to 100% carbon-bond organic nutrition in the form of organic trace minerals, fulvic acid, oxygen, poly-electrolytes, metallo-enzymes and more.

Since 1999, health care professionals have turned to Drucker Labs for its groundbreaking products. Doctors and their patients have reported outstanding results after taking just an ounce a day of this revolutionary product.

Drucker Labs' premiere product, intraMAX, works in maintaining healthy nerve function, assisting the body in preventing allergies, colds, and the flu, building and repairing blood, bones, muscles, tissues, joints, ligaments and tendons, as well as reducing "free radical" (oxidation) damage to the body's cells and slowing the aging process. All Drucker Labs' products are safe for most sensitive or allergic patients.

intraMax also is considered to be a foundational product. Rather than using a hit or miss approach for causal and symptomatic treatment, more health-care providers are using a broad-spectrum consideration; one that covers a larger number of potential solutions using a multi-vitamin or multi-nutrient supplement to help with patient symptoms. Health care providers and patients alike can benefit most by establishing a baseline approach such as this and intraMax fits perfectly into this category.

Once the patient begins to use a good complete multi-vitamin supplement, numerous nutritional deficiencies can be dealt with. It will be much easier for both patient and practitioner to narrow any remaining needs. At this point, any lingering symptoms can be targeted, saving both time and money.

Drucker Labs also has invested in world class manufacturing processes, standards, and quality control to produce the finest nutritional supplements available. For example, they use a proprietary purified cold water process ("cold fill") instead of the "warm fill" process used by many other manufacturers. This "cold fill" process produces higher levels of carbon and consequently higher levels of fulvic acid - nature's most precious form of protection and defense for plants, animals and mankind. Cold processing is dramatically more expensive than heat processing, but it preserves the natural organics and is fundamental to this unique technology.

Dr. Drucker and the Drucker Labs' team are passionate about sharing their health promoting products and committed to working with licensed health-care professionals, as well as contributing the results of years of research and technologies to their patients. intraMAX, intraMIN and intraKID are available exclusively through health care professionals. Dr. Drucker is involved personally with the continuing research and development efforts to ensure that their products incorporate the latest advances in nutritional health. The combination of chiropractic care and extraordinary nutrition through the Drucker product line is a tremendous paring for both the provider's practice and patients alike.

Just listen to what Dr. Drucker has to say in his own words: "I've dedicated the last 20 years to researching the complexities of thousands of nutrients and developing Carbon-Bond formulations to create the ultimate nutritional therapy solution. I am happy to combine all my years of work to bring you the answer, it's simple, it's intraMAX."
